ST. LOUIS COUNTY EXECUTIVE DR. SAM PAGE HAS RESCINDED THE COUNTY'S HEALTH ORDER REQUIRING MASKS AND SOCIAL DISTANCING

Mayor Lowery has announced that all city buildings will completely be re-open to the public effective immediately regarding the latest announcement from St. Louis County Executive Dr. Sam Page.

In a press conference this morning St. Louis County Executive Dr. Sam Page announced that he was rescinding the county's health order requiring masks and social distancing. The updated guidelines are in step with the new direction from the Centers for Disease Control.

The new CDC guidance were announced on Thursday which allows fully vaccinated Americans to stop wearing masks indoors in most settings. The new rules will help clear the way for reopening workplaces, schools, and other venues. It also removes the need for social distancing for those who are fully vaccinated. If you are not vaccinated then experts recommend that you still wear a mask indoors and in crowded outdoor areas. People who have not been vaccinated should also continue to practice social distancing.

Here are St. Louis County's recommendations:

- Masks are no longer required in St. Louis County.
- We still recommend masks whenever you're close to people who may not be vaccinated.
- If you haven't been vaccinated yet, please visit www.stlcorona.com to see the list of vaccination events and appointments page.
